

New Staff Member

The Park City Museum hired a new Curator of Education at the beginning of August. Johanna Fassbender has a degree in Anthropology and American Studies and just finished her Masters in Museum Education and Public Programming at San Francisco State University.

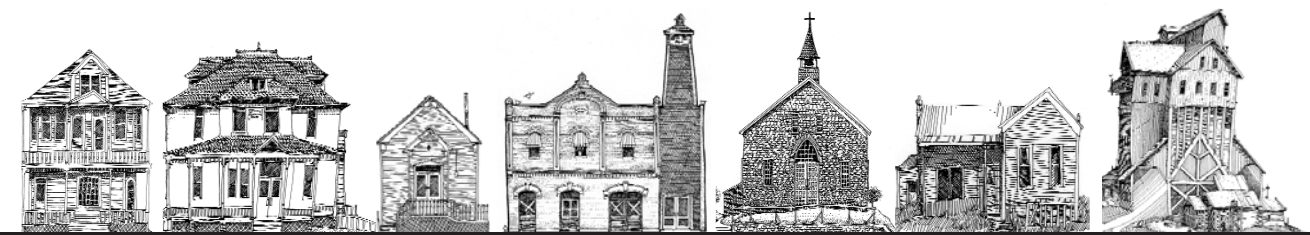

She has been our History & Heritage Intern this summer and was busy cataloging the artifacts of the Smith and Brim Collection. Together with the help of volunteers, she photographed, measured and described each object and entered all of the data into PastPerfect, our collections' database.

For the next few months, she is planning several exciting projects: "Celebrate Your Museum Day", Halloween activities, and games and art activities to support the Historic Main Street Christmas festivities. To offer all these programs, she can always use the help of active volunteers. So if you are interested in getting involved in any of these activities, and if you love working with children, just give her a call at 435-649-7457 or email: jfassbender@parkcityhistory.org.

SEPTEMBER 2006

The Museum Goes Back To School!

The new school year has started, and the museum has a variety of fun and exciting activities coming up! Mark your calendars for these dates!

Celebrate Your Museum Day - Saturday, September 16th

It's "Celebrate Your Museum Day" in Utah! Come join us as we will offer art activities and games for children from 2-5pm.

Come join us as we offer art activities and games for children from 2-5pm.

Starting at 5:30pm, we will host our first oral history event "What's your Park City story?" Share your memories and see what Park City looked like when you came to town. There will be a guest speaker, and we will serve light refreshments.

Tuesday, October 31st, is Halloween!

Kids, get your costumes out and come to the museum to make a scary mask. We have invited the kids from the after-school program at Aspen Villas. Space is limited. Call for reservations.

NEW EDUCATIONAL SPACE!

We are also pleased to announce the temporary exhibit "Back to School: Explore Park City's Classrooms," featuring Marsac school photos from the 1950s. Most of the photos were taken by Kendall Webb and depict classroom scenes as well as fun extracurricular activities, such as dancing and puppet shows.

The exhibit is part of an educational space that will invite visitors to hang out, play games, and get creative with crayons. We also show the DVD "Silver & Snow:

The Park City Story" in this space and will eventually have several books for adults and children to "browse through." Thanks to Lynn Fey for generously donating the TV. Please visit the new space to get into the mood for the new school year, and discover how much fun learning can be!

In 1947, Marsac School kids made wonderful paper masks for Halloween. Come visit the museum on October 31st to make your own!

10th Annual Historic Home Tour

With the highest number of attendees ever, the 10th Annual Historic Home Tour was a success. On Saturday June 17, sixteen historic homes and buildings on upper Park and Woodside Avenues opened their doors for guests to explore their history. Visitors learned of the fires that destroyed houses, efforts to preserve them, and stories of the colorful characters that lived there.

The 10th Annual Historic Home Tour was a rousing success! 363 Park was the first stop for visitors taking the tour.

The Board of Trustees of the Park City Historical Society & Museum wish to extend our warmest thanks to all sponsors, homeowners, and volunteers who made the 10th Annual Historic Home Tour and 2nd Annual A Taste of Park City History events possible.

When A Taste of Park City History debuted in 2005, no one knew it would be such a hit. This year's 2nd annual event on June 16 proved more popular. Even with an increase to ten historic houses, demand still exceeded availability.

The evening began with a reception hosted by the Washington School Inn. Diners then proceeded to a historic house where they enjoyed a gourmet meal prepared by a wonderful local chef. The evening was made complete with a visit from Park City locals Mother Urban, Patrick Coughlin, and the Silver Queen, as portrayed by Ron Butkovich, Lannie Scopes, and Katherine Henney, respectively.

"We could not have done it without the donations of the chefs, the fine spirits of the volunteer servers, and the generosity of the homeowners who opened their homes," Lynn Fey said about the event. Additional thanks go to the Rocky Mountain Chocolate Factory, who donated treats for each attendee, and to Lynn and Tom Fey who purchased some of the food.

Thank you!

Guests John Fahey, Dick Clasen, Penny and Bill Cunningham enjoy the reception, which was generously hosted by Shabu Restaurant. Wine was provided by Villa Maria Winery.
